Taking the Message to Heart

When involved in a conflict situation, we face many pressures and challenges. In the immediate presence of God’s presence, we experience confusion, lack of clarity, and internal stress: Do we really want to respond in love to those who have betrayed us? Do we really want to put aside our right to vengeance? Do we really have the faithfulness after we have made our choices, to remain faithful? Hold to your course. God holds us back, the confusion and pressures are challenged to choose the right path and remain faithful. Hold to your course. God teaches us to persevere, to hold to our God—despite the situation still seems so grim. Yet, when we are in the midst of a conflict, sometimes long after our choices are made, the stories of Pesach (Passover) and Pascha (Easter) offer hope and strength. The stories of Pesach and Pascha teach us to persevere, to hold to our God—despite the situation still seems so grim. Yet, when we are in the midst of a conflict, sometimes long after our choices are made, the stories of Pesach (Passover) and Pascha (Easter) offer hope and strength. The stories of Pesach and Pascha teach us to persevere, to hold to our God—despite the situation still seems so grim. Yet, when we are in the midst of a conflict, sometimes long after our choices are made, the stories of Pesach (Passover) and Pascha (Easter) offer hope and strength. The stories of Pesach and Pascha teach us to persevere, to hold to our God—despite the situation still seems so grim. Yet, when we are in the midst of a conflict, sometimes long after our choices are made, the stories of Pesach (Passover) and Pascha (Easter) offer hope and strength. The stories of Pesach and Pascha teach us to persevere, to hold to our God—despite the situation still seems so grim. Yet, when we are in the midst of a conflict, sometimes long after our choices are made, the stories of Pesach (Passover) and Pascha (Easter) offer hope and strength. The stories of Pesach and Pascha teach us to persevere, to hold to our God—despite the situation still seems so grim. Yet, when we are in the midst of a conflict, sometimes long after our choices are made, the stories of Pesach (Passover) and Pascha (Easter) offer hope and strength. The stories of Pesach and Pascha teach us to persevere, to hold to our God—despite the situation still seems so grim. Yet, when we are in the midst of a conflict, sometimes long after our choices are made, the stories of Pesach (Passover) and Pascha (Easter) offer hope and strength. The stories of Pesach and Pascha teach us to persevere, to hold to our God—despite the situation still seems so grim. Yet, when we are in the midst of a conflict, sometimes long after our choices are made, the stories of Pesach (Passover) and Pascha (Easter) offer hope and strength. The stories of Pesach and Pascha teach us to persevere, to hold to our God—despite the situation still seems so grim. Yet, when we are in the midst of a conflict, sometimes long after our choices are made, the stories of Pesach (Passover) and Pascha (Easter) offer hope and strength. The stories of Pesach and Pascha teach us to persevere, to hold to our God—despite the situation still seems so grim. Yet, when we are in the midst of a conflict, sometimes long after our choices are made, the stories of Pesach (Passover) and Pascha (Easter) offer hope and strength. The stories of Pesach and Pascha teach us to persevere, to hold to our God—despite the situation still seems so grim. Yet, when we are in the midst of a conflict, sometimes long after our choices are made, the stories of Pesach (Passover) and Pascha (Easter) offer hope and strength. The stories of Pesach and Pascha teach us to persevere, to hold to our God—despite the situation still seems so grim. Yet, when we are in the midst of a conflict, sometimes long after our choices are made, the stories of Pesach (Passover) and Pascha (Easter) offer hope and strength. The stories of Pesach and Pascha teach us to persevere, to hold to our God—despite the situation still seems so grim. Yet, when we are in the midst of a conflict, sometimes long after our choices are made, the stories of Pesach (Passover) and Pascha (Easter) offer hope and strength. The stories of Pesach and Pascha teach us to persevere, to hold to our God—despite the situation still seems so grim. Yet, when we are in the midst of a conflict, sometimes long after our choices are made, the stories of Pesach (Passover) and Pascha (Easter) offer hope and strength. The stories of Pesach and Pascha teach us to persevere, to hold to our God—despite the situation still seems so grim. Yet, when we are in the midst of a conflict, sometimes long after our choices are made, the stories of Pesach (Passover) and Pascha (Easter) offer hope and strength. The stories of Pesach and Pascha teach us to persevere, to hold to our God—despite the situation still seems so grim. Yet, when we are in the midst of a conflict, sometimes long after our choices are made, the stories of Pesach (Passover) and Pascha (Easter) offer hope and strength. The stories of Pesach and Pascha teach us to persevere, to hold to our God—despite the situation still seems so grim. Yet, when we are in the midst of a conflict, sometimes long after our choices are made, the stories of Pesach (Passover) and Pascha (Easter) offer hope and strength. The stories of Pesach and Pascha teach us to persevere, to hold to our God—despite the situation still seems so grim. Yet, when we are in the midst of a conflict, sometimes long after our choices are made, the stories of Pesach (Passover) and Pascha (Easter) offer hope and strength. The stories of Pesach and Pascha teach us to persevere, to hold to our God—despite the situation still seems so grim. Yet, when we are in the midst of a conflict, sometimes long after our choices are made, the stories of Pesach (Passover) and Pascha (Easter) offer hope and strength. The stories of Pesach and Pascha teach us to persevere, to hold to our God—despite the situation still seems so grim. Yet, when we are in the midst of a conflict, sometimes long after our choices are made, the stories of Pesach (Passover) and Pascha (Easter) offer hope and strength. The stories of Pesach and Pascha teach us to persevere, to hold to our God—despite the situation still seems so grim. Yet, when we are in the midst of a conflict, sometimes long after our choices are made, the stories of Pesach (Passover) and Pascha (Easter) offer hope and strength. The stories of Pesach and Pascha teach us to persevere, to hold to our God—despite the situation still seem
United by the King of Angels

Committing to Stewardship

Once upon a holiday night, we entered into the holy city of Jerusalem, taking what God had for us. On January 13, I had the unique opportunity to travel to Judea and Samaria to participate in a three-day conference that was hosted by the Musalaha Women’s Department.

I didn’t know what to expect or what the conference would be like, but I knew it was an opportunity to be a part of something that could make a difference. The conference was focused on the theme of Intergenerational Trauma.

This past December 28-30 we held our annual conference, which was co-hosted by the Women’s Department of Musalaha and the Shemen Sasson Israel Initiative. The theme for this year’s conference was the importance of reconciliation and the role of women in promoting peace.

The conference was a great opportunity for us to meet and engage in meaningful dialogue with women from various backgrounds. Together, we learned from each other’s experiences and gained a deeper understanding of the challenges faced by women in the region.

One of the highlights of the conference was the time we spent getting to know one another and sharing our stories. We were able to connect on a personal level and build relationships based on mutual respect and understanding.

The conference was also a platform for women to share their insights and experiences on issues such as trauma, trauma, and violence. We heard from women who had been through trauma and had the courage to share their stories. We also heard from women who were working to bring about change in their communities and the world.

The conference concluded with a powerful closing ceremony, which included a performance by the Palestinian and Israeli women who had been attending the conference. The performance was a powerful reminder of the importance of unity and the power of hope.

Overall, the conference was a success and a testament to the strength and resilience of women in the region. We look forward to continuing our work and engaging with others to promote peace and reconciliation.

Ronit Kory
Musalaha Women’s Department

The Importance of Relationships

Here at Musalaha, we often find ourselves in a classroom setting. We sit in front of a professor, learning about principles of faith and society before discussing how to apply them to everyday life. This is the way the world is currently perceived, but it doesn’t have to be so.

We understand that the issues are complex and require a nuanced approach. The relational dimension of our work is crucial, but it is the latter that keeps us from feeling overwhelmed by the pressures of the world around us, but it gives us hope because it proves that defying the trends of that world is possible. The relational dimension of our work is crucial, but it is the latter that keeps us from feeling overwhelmed by the pressures of the world around us, but it gives us hope because it proves that defying the trends of that world is possible. The relational dimension of our work is crucial, but it is the latter that keeps us from feeling overwhelmed by the pressures of the world around us, but it gives us hope because it proves that defying the trends of that world is possible.

The Importance of Relationships

Here at Musalaha, we often find ourselves in a classroom setting. We sit in front of a professor, learning about principles of faith and society before discussing how to apply them to everyday life. This is the way the world is currently perceived, but it doesn’t have to be so.

The Importance of Relationships

Here at Musalaha, we often find ourselves in a classroom setting. We sit in front of a professor, learning about principles of faith and society before discussing how to apply them to everyday life. This is the way the world is currently perceived, but it doesn’t have to be so.

The Importance of Relationships

Here at Musalaha, we often find ourselves in a classroom setting. We sit in front of a professor, learning about principles of faith and society before discussing how to apply them to everyday life. This is the way the world is currently perceived, but it doesn’t have to be so.

The Importance of Relationships

Here at Musalaha, we often find ourselves in a classroom setting. We sit in front of a professor, learning about principles of faith and society before discussing how to apply them to everyday life. This is the way the world is currently perceived, but it doesn’t have to be so.

The Importance of Relationships

Here at Musalaha, we often find ourselves in a classroom setting. We sit in front of a professor, learning about principles of faith and society before discussing how to apply them to everyday life. This is the way the world is currently perceived, but it doesn’t have to be so.

The Importance of Relationships

Here at Musalaha, we often find ourselves in a classroom setting. We sit in front of a professor, learning about principles of faith and society before discussing how to apply them to everyday life. This is the way the world is currently perceived, but it doesn’t have to be so.

The Importance of Relationships

Here at Musalaha, we often find ourselves in a classroom setting. We sit in front of a professor, learning about principles of faith and society before discussing how to apply them to everyday life. This is the way the world is currently perceived, but it doesn’t have to be so.

The Importance of Relationships

Here at Musalaha, we often find ourselves in a classroom setting. We sit in front of a professor, learning about principles of faith and society before discussing how to apply them to everyday life. This is the way the world is currently perceived, but it doesn’t have to be so.

The Importance of Relationships

Here at Musalaha, we often find ourselves in a classroom setting. We sit in front of a professor, learning about principles of faith and society before discussing how to apply them to everyday life. This is the way the world is currently perceived, but it doesn’t have to be so.

The Importance of Relationships

Here at Musalaha, we often find ourselves in a classroom setting. We sit in front of a professor, learning about principles of faith and society before discussing how to apply them to everyday life. This is the way the world is currently perceived, but it doesn’t have to be so.

The Importance of Relationships

Here at Musalaha, we often find ourselves in a classroom setting. We sit in front of a professor, learning about principles of faith and society before discussing how to apply them to everyday life. This is the way the world is currently perceived, but it doesn’t have to be so.

The Importance of Relationships

Here at Musalaha, we often find ourselves in a classroom setting. We sit in front of a professor, learning about principles of faith and society before discussing how to apply them to everyday life. This is the way the world is currently perceived, but it doesn’t have to be so.

The Importance of Relationships

Here at Musalaha, we often find ourselves in a classroom setting. We sit in front of a professor, learning about principles of faith and society before discussing how to apply them to everyday life. This is the way the world is currently perceived, but it doesn’t have to be so.